Live life the Mereway

Call me a 'traditionalist'... but I like the Mereway of doing things.

Remember the days when a toy was very much more than that.

It wasn't just a toy, it was a labour of love, expressed through the maker's exceptional use of quality materials and his exquisite attention to detail.

Handcrafted, hand painted and handed down from generation to generation to become a much loved and treasured family heirloom.

Sadly the art of traditional craftsmanship is not found in many toy shops today, but you will find some fine examples here.

English Revival kitchens are built using high quality materials and, like the traditional toy maker, their craftsman spent an enormous amount of time on perfecting each individual piece resulting in a fine quality finished kitchen.

With designs inspired from distinguished periods in English history, each kitchen is built to stand the test of time and each one holds testament to traditional carpentry skills.

This collection is called English Revival... reviving the traditional skills of exceptional craftsman for the way we live today.

ENGLISH  REVIVAL

It all starts with British quality craftsmanship...

No matter which you choose, a traditional solid wood hand painted kitchen or a contemporary sleek matt painted Signature kitchen, you can be sure of one thing. Your kitchen will be built to the very highest standards by British craftsmen who prides themselves on a craft exceptionally well executed.

...and ends with quality kitchens that we are proud to say have been hand built in Britain.

The Signature Range

An exceptional smooth surface

Inspired by English heritage, Signature is a new range of kitchens which have a familiar yet very distinct look about them.

The Signature range is handbuilt here in the UK, with the objective of creating a beautiful kitchen which is hand painted in a sleek flat matt finish.

Whilst still maintaining all the build qualities and values of a traditional English Revival kitchen this range offers the homeowner a modern distinct alternative.

Doors and frames can be painted in any one of 12 selected colours and then combined with cabinets which either complement or contrast to create your unique look.

All of the matt finishes have been selected by our colourists to make pairing simple and enjoyable. You'll find the palette of 12 colours on page 36.

Signature A hand finished in-frame design

Pages 14-37

Choose any kitchen from Signature, where the hand painted doors in a flat matt finish sit within a contemporary shaker style frame and you will be choosing a kitchen that embodies quality British craftsmanship at its very best.

From the unique to a traditional look, with four end panel and plinth combinations to choose from your kitchen can become truly individual to you.

These are your choices.

Keep it simple with no end panel for a plain English look.

Choose no end panels and add a profile plinth shoe for a unique designer look.

Opt for no end panels and profile plinth for a classic look.

Or choose a tongue and groove (or plain) end panel for a very traditional look.

looks^{Signature} that will last

Because our doors are crafted from one single piece

Unlike our competitors who use joints in their construction our doors and frames are made in one piece meaning they will never develop whisper cracks.

And because they are hand painted with a durable paint they will look as good in years to come as when first fitted.

Door and frames are available in 12 carefully chosen colours and the cabinets and open display cabinets are designed to match those same colours.

British quality craftsmanship at it's very best

We carefully select timber sourced from as far away as North America. We take the time to specify the character of the wood required such as knots, splits and colour to suit individual ranges. Using a straight line edger the wood is squared up, ensuring only quality pieces of wood are used right from the very start. Expert planing and edge smoothing prepares the wood for the next stage where your kitchen can begin to take shape.

It's all in the detail

We use a traditional French Mitre Joint to strengthen timber frames. Butterfly Joints are used to connect door frames together with a water based glue to ensure ultimate strength. Every door is hand made and sanded numerous times to within a 500 micron tolerance to ensure the perfect finish, ready for the first paint application. It is then left to cure for several days, sanded again and then another coat is applied. This process can be repeated on numerous occasions to ensure the highest standards.

The very best of both contemporary design and the use of traditional skills and materials

These are the values we share with Mereway Kitchens who have created this collection of expertly made kitchen furniture.

The Modern Classic range encompasses all of the above values, with which we empathise, and are fine examples of the high standard of quality kitchen furniture making that can still be found manufactured in this country today.

A modern take on a traditional kitchen essential that epitomises the principle behind the Modern Classic range.

First seen at the Clerkenwell Design Week 2013, the Young & Norgate Cooper Stool attracted many admiring looks and comments. Built and hand finished to a very high standard we are proud to be able showcase this in our collection.

You can see the complete range of Modern Classic kitchens starting on page 62 and we are proud to say you can see our limited edition stool showcased in the surrounds of a stunning kitchen on page 64.

Cooper Bar Stool

Kitchen/Bar Stool inspired by the Cooper's craft; the art of barrel making. The Cooper Stool design incorporates an angle-jointed seat base, allowing for increased comfort, as well as naturally splaying the legs of the stool to provide a sturdy footprint. We like to imagine a master Cooper resting upon his namesake, a tumbler of cider in hand. Made to order and limited to 100 pieces. Materials: Oak Dimensions: H720 x W360 x D255mm
